

The illumina™ Emerging Researcher Award, 2023

GUIDELINES:

illumina™ and Queenstown Research Week have developed this award to recognise and acknowledge an emerging researcher who uses molecular biology tools in New Zealand. The total value of the award is NZ$1,000. The prize to acknowledge the achievement will be presented at the Queenstown Research Week conference dinner.

The illumina™ Emerging Researcher Award is intended for early career researchers (e.g. postdoctoral scientist). Applicants will:

- have demonstrated emerging research excellence in any medical or biological research area using molecular-based tools
- have published research in high-ranking international journals
- be up to 5 years from their PhD being awarded at the time of application, or equivalent with career interruption.

Applications will be assessed on the above criteria, subject to opportunity (taking into account career interruptions). Applicants must be New Zealand residents and must be available to attend QMB2023. Although some preference will be given to those who have carried out their research predominantly in New Zealand, recently returned scientists who have done most of their research overseas and who meet the requirements are encouraged to apply.

Applications will be judged by an independent judging panel and the organizing committee.
